Title 1 Tidbits November 2026

There is a lot of importance in reading aloud to your child. Not only is it great bonding time, but children who listen to someone read a book out loud develop important comprehension and listening skills plus a whole lot more!!

Language Development:

Reading aloud can introduce children to new vocabulary which will encourage them to use a variety of synonyms or antonyms for words they already know. This will inspire them to use a greater variety of language when speaking and writing.

Fluency and Expression:

Parents can model how a story should flow as well as how to change their voice for different characters and events.

Listening Skills and Comprehension

Creating a higher level of engagement while you read can improve listening skills. Comprehension questions can be asked before, during and after reading aloud. Provide your child with the opportunity to share something they learned from the story.

Developing a Love of Reading:

Just listening to a variety of texts with fluency and expression can motivate a child to read themselves for pleasure.

https://images.search.yahoo.com/falltruck
https://www.teachstarter.com/us/blog/classroom-read-aloud-strategies-us/

Happy Reading ~ Mrs. Tiger Dierker Para-educator